THE MONTESSORI

The Montessori method is focused on promoting the spontaneity of the baby / child as well as their autonomy, this giving them the freedom to function within an environment specially prepared for it, an aspect that therefore also favors the self-development of the child / baby.

It is an open education method created by Maria Montessori, who thought that the students "are the ones who have to describe the same laws of education", since "the best teachers of the students are themselves".

Her pedagogy considers that the first years of children's lives are critical for their development, since it is when they develop a large part of their abilities.

That is why the Montessori method emphasizes the infant stage, and focuses on the principle that children should have the freedom to learn and develop on their own, in an understanding and caring environment that is stimulating.

A very relevant aspect of the Montessori method is the fact that it is recommended that classrooms contain students of different ages, divided by age groups due to the specificities of development in each period. Generally the separation is done in groups of 3 years (for example from 0 to 3 years from 3 to 6 years) In this way, the younger children learn by watching the older children and, in turn, the older ones benefit from helping to younger children. The mixed age group allows children to develop socially, intellectually and emotionally. This is a small introduction of what the montessori method is and what we are going to learn throughout the year, every Thursday we will send a sheet, informing what your child learned in the week and how you can also apply it at home. It is very important that you help your child become independent, we will send photos and videos every week of the children's progress, remember each child is different and each one has a learning rhythm. Montessori is an educational method, characterized by independence, freedom with limits and respect for the physical and social development of the child. Recognizes the importance of child-directed activity and adult observation. (Guide) The child develops through free work with teaching materials.

The purpose of this method is to develop the potential of the child in a structured environment, that is why the shelves are at their height so that they decide what to play with, how to return it to its place, little by little we will work together to achieve it.

WHY SLEEP ON A MATTRESS AND NOT IN A CRIB.

The Montessori method chooses to adapt the world to babies, not to accelerate their adaptation to the world of adults. It also tries to place the little ones at the center of decisions, giving them the opportunity to explore and learn in a respectful way, tending to these concepts, a bed at ground level allows the little ones to get on and off it, stimulating their autonomy and independence from an early age. In addition, they are safe in terms of falls, also allowing the elimination of the bars of cribs. The relationship with their environment is much more open. I love the idea of a beautiful nursery as much as anyone else, but the reality is that most nurseries are designed with only parents and aesthetics in mind. This is completely fine if that's what you want, but I think a nursery is a space for a child, so it should probably be an interesting and inspiring place for them. When we decided to take the floor bed approach, it also shaped the other decisions we made for the space and we did our best to set everything up with the little ones in mind. We hung the artwork at their level and placed low shelves with baskets of toys that could be easily accessed and explored independently. We kept everything simple and completely safe for babies to get up and explore however they want to encourage their independence and security.
